

Night-time Brilliance
Bob Poe

I often solve a task at night
As on my bed I lie.
I catch a thought in precious flight
As it goes prancing by.

But in the morn the thought has flown;
Something must have scared it.
Or I recall it — it was my own —
But alas, it has no merit.